INDIANS OF THE SOUTHWEST. By GEORGE A. DORSEY, PH. D., Curator of Anthropology Field Columbian Museum. Designs by A. S. Covey. Passenger Department, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railway System. Fifteenth thousand. 1903. Pp. 223.

This is an excellent popular account of the Indians of the Southwest of the United States, by a well-equipped man of science, and the railroad authorities are to be congratulated upon having put the work into such able hands. The numerous illustrations are good, and the text covers the following topics: Introduction to the Southwest; Southwest peoples, tribes, and linguistic stocks; three Southwestern industries (basketry, pottery, weaving); Upper Rio Grande Pueblos; Homes of the ancients; Lower Rio Grande Pueblos; the Western Keresan Pueblos; Zuñi and the Seven Cities of Cibola; To Hopiland, Province of Tusayan; Domestic life of the Hopi; the Hopi at worship; Hopi ceremonies; Flute, antelope, and snake ceremonies; Ancient home of the Hopi; the Navaho; the Apache; Tribes of the Yuman and Piman stocks; Tribes of Southeastern California. Pages 217-223 contain well-chosen bibliographies (with critical notes) for each of the eighteen chapters of the book. The mass of information compressed within these pages will certainly enable us "to better understand civilized man of to-day by a knowledge of man in more primitive conditions." Others than tourists will make good use of Dr. Dorsey's volume.

Lists of Old Norse personal names (also pet names for girls and boys), Frisian personal and family names, names of persons entered in Domesday Book as holding lands, temp. King Ed. Confr., names of tenants in chief in Domesday Book, names of under-tenants of lands at the time of the Domesday survey, and of Norman names, are given, while pages 77-283 contain an "Alphabetical List of British Surnames"—Abbiss-Zouch. An appendix (pp. 285, 286) gives a list of "names under consideration, many of which are reported as not to be found in any existing gazetteer or
